Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed on December 9, 2005 has been entered.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1, 2, and 6-52 are allowed.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding claims 1-18, Anderson et al. (US 2005/0258367 A1) teach a plurality of microbolometers including a plurality of switches including a reference voltage (page 9, paragraph 116), however Anderson et al. do not teach or make obvious the sharing of contacts within the microbolometer array. Prior art fails to teach or make obvious the selecting means comprising a first set of switches adapted to apply a reference voltage to corresponding ones of the plurality of microbolometers and a second set of switches adapted to route the output signal from corresponding ones of the plurality of microbolometers, with the first set of switches initially asserted and the second set of switches initially deasserted, the first set of switches sequentially deasserted as corresponding ones of the second set of switches coupled to the same contacts are sequentially asserted until all of the second set of switches are asserted.

Regarding claims 19-26, Anderson et al. (US 2005/0258367 A1) a bias circuit (Abstract), a load microbolometer (pages 1-2, paragraph 10) and a resistor adapted to provide temperature coefficient of resistance compensation for the load microbolometer (page 3, paragraph 44), however Anderson et al. do not teach or make obvious the sharing of contacts within the microbolometer array. Parrish et al. (US 6,812,465 B2) teach a bias circuit comprising a load microbolometer and a resistor adapted to provide temperature coefficient of resistance for the load microbolometer, however as US 6,812,465 B2 was published less than one year from the filing date of the present application and as it is commonly assigned with the application, it can not be utilized as prior art for rejection purposes.

Regarding claims 27-37, prior art fails to teach or make obvious a first and second plurality of switches that are initially asserted and deasserted, respectively, with one of the switches from the first plurality deasserted prior to one of the switches from the second plurality being asserted which couple to the same contact, with this switching pattern repeated for the first and second plurality of switches until the second plurality of switches are all asserted.

Regarding claims 38-52, prior art fails to teach or make obvious a microbolometer array including shared contacts in which there is provided a means for selecting from among the microbolometers in the microbolometer array and providing a corresponding output signal; wherein the selecting means comprises a first set of switches adapted to apply a reference voltage to corresponding ones of the plurality of microbolometers and a second set of switches adapted to route the output signal from corresponding ones of the plurality of microbolometers, with one of the first set of switches asserted for every two of the second set of switches to provide the output signal for two of the microbolometers in corresponding columns; and means for providing temperature compensation for the output signal.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments, see page 18, lines 8- 22, filed December 9, 2005, with respect to claims 6-10, 19-22, and 24-26 have been fully considered and are persuasive, as Parrish et al. is the best available reference and the date of this application is not valid for use as prior art. The rejection 103 (a) rejection of claims 6-10, 19-22, and 24-26 has been withdrawn.
